Among regular church goers is Wm. Bartholomew, who with his good wife, went to the M. E. C. last Sunday eve, after leaving their house. They returned and tried for an hour through shivering cold to get in, but could not, as the cat inside had scratched the lock catch so that it could not be opened from the outside. William went to the rear, removed shed door, jammed a panel out of an inside door, reached through, unlocked and entered. There is a law providing for the establishment and perpetuation of corners and quarter posts at public expense. This was done because of the trouble, law suits and bad blood engendered by disputes over land boundaries. The Supervisors of Cheboygan county have power under the act of 1883 to appoint a surveyor to attend to the work of fixing permanent land marks in the townships that provide the expenses which will be small. It will cost so little and save so much that the matter should be attended to without delay.

Monday afternoon at about 6 o'clock, James O'Conner, the sewing machine dealer, who had been making his usual rounds, left his cutter stand in the street in the vicinity of the Baptist church in charge of Charlie, the little son of B. McEvoy, of the American House. For some unexplained reason the horse ran away, with little Charlie bravely hanging to the reins. On reaching Portage street, near the Cross street corner, the cutter upset, throwing out the boy and landing him, with a buffalo robe in the slush and mud, but uninjured. The horse kept on with the rig until it reached the lane next to the American, leading to the stable. Here the cutter was completely wrecked. It was regarded as a narrow escape for little Charlie, and his parents have hardly yet ceased to congratulate themselves over it.—Chippewa County Democrat.
